A man sued a fast-food company, claiming that his obesity, and the health problems that followed from it, resulted from his four or five meals a week at the fast-food restaurant. He blamed the company, not himself, for his problems!

We all tend to be like that, though, blaming others for our misdeeds. But God does not accept excuses; He considers each one of us accountable for our sins. However, here’s where the mystery of atonement begins to appear in its beauty. If we assume responsibility for our sins and have true faith in Jesus, God is willing to forgive us those sins. When we acknowledge our responsibility, we are liberated from the penalty of our rebellion. What happened to that penalty? God did not overlook it. No, instead He allowed it to fall on Jesus, and Christ’s experience of that punishment will be our theme this week.

Anguish: Heading to Gethsemane

Read Matthew 26:37, 38; Mark 14:33, 34. What was Jesus experiencing here at Gethsemane?

Jesus knew exactly what He would be facing within the next few hours. The experience was extremely painful and disturbing. At the moment He reached Gethsemane He could no longer contain His emotions and began to share them with Peter, James, and John (Matt. 26:37, 38; Mark 14:33, 34). The language He used is very important.

“He began to be deeply distressed and troubled” (Mark 14:33, NIV). The Greek verb ekthambeo, translated “deeply disturbed,” designates a highly emotional condition of deep excitement caused by something perplexing, amazing, or disorienting. It often is accompanied by fear, even terror and trembling. Matthew uses the verb lupeo, translated “overwhelmed by sorrow,” to designate a high level of emotional distress, sadness, and anxiety (Matt. 26:38). The second verb in Mark 14:33, troubled (Greek ademoneo), expresses more clearly anxiety, distress, and horror. The emotional and physical condition of Jesus was reaching new and unknown depths of discomfort and upheaval. The peace that characterized Him appeared to be waning; fear, trembling, and anxiety were taking over instead. Notice that Mark says that Jesus “began” to feel that way as He got to Gethsemane. This emotional turmoil was going to get worse.

Also, although no specific reason is given for the physical and emotional state of Jesus, through the light of the New Testament we can conclude that this is the result of bearing the world’s sin, not from fear of what humans would do to Him.

“My soul is overwhelmed with sorrow to the point of death” (Mark 14:34, NIV). This is the way Jesus Himself described His condition to the disciples. “My soul” could be interpreted as an emphatic expression, “I, myself,” or as designating the all-inclusive nature of His experience. The expression “overwhelmed with sorrow” is the translation of the Greek word perilupos, which usually designates a sorrow or affliction measureless in intensity and depth. In this particular case the intensity of the sorrow was bringing Jesus to the borders of the second death. He was already starting to suffer the fate that should have been ours.

Look at the sufferings of Jesus here and realize that this should have been you, not Him. How does this make you feel? How should those feelings be translated into a changed life?
The Lesson in Brief

Key Text: Colossians 1:13, 14

The Student Will:

Know: We are not under Satan’s thumb, but rather, in Christ’s arms.
Feel: The agony Christ felt as He became separated from His Father.
Do: Live with assurance that Christ has defeated Satan.

Learning Outline:

I. Agony and Surrender in the Garden (Matt. 26:37, 38; Mark 14:33, 34)

A. How does the agony of Christ in Gethsemane impact your daily life? Have you ever been so overcome with sorrow that you felt you would not survive? Did you feel alone as you experienced this grief? As we begin to understand Christ’s agony, does this impact our view of His struggle in Gethsemane?

B. Separation from God fills the soul with horror. Explore what God the Father and the Holy Spirit might have felt during Christ’s time in Gethsemane, on the cross, and in the tomb.

II. His Death Secures Our Life (John 19:28–30)

A. On the cross Christ surrendered and rested in God’s perfect plan. Compare this to turning your life over to Him and resting in His salvation.

B. The cross was a dirty, messy, painful, and humiliating way to die. It’s easy for us to sanitize the crucifixion. How do we do that? What impact does this have on our understanding of how much Christ truly gave up for us?

Summary: After studying Christ’s decision to die for us, we can see how much He loves us. Let’s return that love to Him daily.
The Cup: Willing Submission

Read Jesus’ prayer in Gethsemane (Matt. 26:39–42; Mark 14:35, 36; Luke 22:40–44). What is the essence of the prayer? What major element stands out regarding Jesus’ attitude concerning what He was about to face?

While in the Garden, Jesus used the metaphor of the cup to help us understand His inner feelings. The cup is used in the Bible to designate blessings received from the Lord (Pss. 16:5, 23:5) or the salvation He offers us (Ps. 116:13). But more often it refers to God’s judgment against sin and sinners (Ps. 75:8). This cup contains the wine of His anger against His enemies, His judicial wrath (Jer. 25:15, 16). It is to this cup that Jesus was referring when He asked the Father to let it be taken away from Him, if possible (Matt. 26:39, Mark 14:36). He was experiencing loneliness—the abandonment of the disciples and particularly the abandonment of God. He sought the company and support of the disciples but didn’t get it. And now, all by Himself, He asked the Father not to forsake Him. The answer that came back to Him from within the darkness of the divine silence was, “There is no other way to save the human race.” Jesus voluntarily acquiesced to the will of the Father.

When the mob came to take Him, Peter tried to protect Him. How do Jesus’ words to Peter (John 18:11) help us better understand Christ’s willingness to suffer for us?

Jesus came to this planet to die: “‘The Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many’” (Mark 10:45, NIV). God by definition cannot die, but in order for Him to accept our sin and its penalty He became a human, a creature, and creatures do not have life in themselves; they can die. In Gethsemane Jesus was ready to die, to surrender His life for undeserving sinners everywhere.

When was the last time you purposefully allowed yourself to endure great suffering, purely on behalf of another person and with no personal gain for yourself? What can you learn about yourself from your answer? And what can you learn about Jesus from your answer too?
Learning Cycle

STEP 1—Motivate

Goals can be as simple as a child taking a first step or someone who has been paralyzed for most of his or her life (see Luke 5:18–26) taking his or her first step. Think back to a specific life goal you pursued and completed. You may have completed an academic degree or planned or participated in a mission trip. What smaller steps did you have to accomplish in order to reach the larger goal? What support systems were available to you? Were you all alone in another country without family or friends? Take time to share in class. If there is a member of the class who is currently working toward a goal, circle that person for prayer. As a class, consider practical ways you can help that person reach his or her objective.

Ask your pastor about young people or adults who may be in the process of reaching a major life goal. Invite class members to pray for one or all of them. Then send a note telling them you are supporting them in prayer.

STEP 2—Explore

Bible Commentary

I. In Need of a Savior

Jesus came to earth on a profound rescue mission. He had to overcome the hurdle of reaching His lost children who didn’t have an inkling of their dire situation and need. Before going to the Scriptures, briefly outline the problem of sin and the barriers that prevent salvation and restoration.

Next, look up the word atonement in a dictionary and in a Bible dictionary. Based on this preliminary study, write a definition/description of what it means to be lost.

Compare and Contrast: Read, in Romans 7, Paul’s personal account of his struggle with the sin problem. In what ways is Paul’s description similar to what your class wrote? How does Paul expand and deepen your understanding of humanity’s peril?

CONTINUED
Darkness: Handed Over to the Enemy

In Gethsemane, and now in the events leading to the Cross, Jesus faced as never before the forces of evil. The struggle against satanic powers was to reach indescribable dimensions, testing the Savior to the very core of His being.

Among the indignities, He was being “‘betrayed into the hands of sinners’” (Matt. 26:45, NIV). The verb betrayed (Greek paradidomi, “to hand over”) is used several times to describe what would happen to Jesus. Here the context suggests that Judas is the one who betrays Him, but behind the wicked and voluntary decision of Judas the divine plan was being mysteriously fulfilled. It was God who “delivered [Christ] over to death for our sins” (Rom. 4:25, NIV). But Christ also gave Himself up for us, as seen in Galatians 2:20 and Ephesians 5:2—clear references to His sacrificial death on the cross.

According to Matthew 26:45, 46, Jesus was handed over into the hands of sinners. The verb expresses the idea of a transfer of a possession from one to another. Indeed, already “the light of God was receding from His vision, and He was passing into the hands of the powers of darkness.”—Ellen G. White, Bible Echo and Signs of the Times, August 1, 1892. Now He was going to be delivered totally into the hands of sinners; that is, into the hands of evil powers. For Him this was the hour “‘when darkness reigns’” (Luke 22:53, NIV), when He was to experience total separation from the Father’s love. Christ was going into the kingdom of darkness by Himself; and yet, it was there, in that kingdom, that He would defeat evil once and for all. As the incarnate God in human flesh, He overcame the kingdom of Satan.

Luke says that Jesus was facing the hour of the dominion of darkness (Luke 22:53), and Paul adds that God “has rescued us from the dominion of darkness and brought us into the kingdom of the Son he loves, in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins” (Col. 1:13, 14, NIV). Christ went into the realm of darkness and experienced what we should have experienced, and He did it in order to deliver us from the power of Satan (Acts 26:18). While there He “disarmed the powers and authorities, he made a public spectacle of them, triumphing over them by the cross” (Col. 2:15, NIV).

How should our knowledge of Christ’s victory over these evil forces encourage us in our daily struggles amid the great controversy? What does His victory mean for us? How can we avail ourselves of that victory in our lives?
Consider This: The story is told of two four-year-old friends who wandered away from their mothers and found their way into a lion habitat at a zoo. When their mothers found them, the children were gleefully enjoying their unhampered view of the great beasts. They didn’t recognize the dangerous situation they were in. In what ways does this story represent the human situation?

Read Matthew 26:36–44, Mark 14:32–41, and Luke 22:40–44. The power of our predicament is graphically described in Jesus’ words, “‘My soul is overwhelmed with sorrow to the point of death’” (Matt. 26:38, NIV). Yet despite their need of the Savior’s rescue, the disciples slept. In what ways are we “sleeping” while in danger? What is needed to wake us up?

II. Bridging the Gap

Jesus came to earth from a heavenly kingdom of perfect peace and harmony because He deeply loves us. With the capacity of divine foreknowledge, He recognized what it would cost to secure our release from sin. He came to reawaken our desire to be with Him now and in heaven soon to come.

“Jesus came to restore in man the image of his Maker. None but Christ can fashion anew the character that has been ruined by sin. He came to expel the demons that had controlled the will. He came to lift us up from the dust, to reshape the marred character after the pattern of His divine character, and to make it beautiful with His own glory.” —Ellen G. White, The Desire of Ages, pp. 37, 38.

Consider This: At the cross, Jesus became sin for us. He gave up His life to pay the penalty for our rebellion. His Father had to be totally
The Cry: Exploring the Mystery

On the cross, Jesus was suffering intensely. But so was the Father. God was in Christ, consequently, “the omnipotent God suffered with His Son.”—Ellen G. White, The Upward Look, p. 223. One could even say that “God Himself was crucified with Christ; for Christ was one with the Father.”—Ellen G. White in Signs of the Times, March 26, 1894. What was the nature of the suffering experienced by the Godhead that caused Christ to ask, “‘My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?’” (Matt. 27:46, NIV).

How do you understand Jesus’ cry in that verse?

On the cross God experienced something He had never before experienced: The penalty for sin. “It was necessary for the awful darkness to gather about His soul because of the withdrawal of the Father’s love and favor; for He was standing in the sinner’s place. . . . The righteous One must suffer the condemnation and wrath of God, not in vindictiveness; for the heart of God yearned with greatest sorrow when His Son, the guiltless, was suffering the penalty of sin. This sundering of the divine powers will never again occur throughout the eternal ages.”—Ellen G. White Comments, The SDA Bible Commentary, vol. 7, p. 924.

This statement indicates, first, that the Father withdrew His love from the Son not because He did not love Him but because Jesus was dying in our place. There was no one available to mediate God’s love to His Son! Second, there was no vindictiveness in the heart of the Father as His Son was dying for the sins of the world. He did not rejoice in the death of the Son but was suffering with Him. Third, the real penalty God paid for our sins was “the sundering of the divine powers.” Ellen White is taking us inside the mystery of the relationships between the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, describing for us what the Godhead underwent as Jesus was on the cross. The verb to sunder means “to break or force apart.” That which should have remained united was torn apart.

In short, through Christ’s sacrifice the Godhead was accepting responsibility for the world’s sins and, more so, the Godhead was suffering the consequences of these sins. Could it be that the Godhead, who cannot die, felt in a unique way—through the temporary sundering of the divine powers—the full intensity of the eternal death of the fallen race, through the temporal exclusion of the Son from the unity of the Godhead? The plan of salvation, the atonement, pulled the Trinity apart but momentarily. This experience of extreme “pain” within the Godhead took place only once and will never occur again. That’s what our salvation cost.

separated from Him. (See Mat. 27:46.) What does that tell us about our Savior? In the context of the great controversy between good and evil, what does this tell us about the risks He was willing to take for us? What should this mean to us?

III. The Rescue Mission Action Plan—Atonement

The heavenly Trinity met and developed a plan for our salvation. We describe it using the word atonement. As a class, take a few minutes to draw a time line of salvation representing the different steps in Jesus’ journey from heaven to the cross and resurrection. How do the words anguish, darkness, submission, enemy, and eternal death fit on the time line? What about the words finished, sin-bearer, victory, and eternal life?

STEP 3—Practice

Thought Question:

Isaiah 43:1–13 paints a picture of our value to God and His action on our behalf. Its context is set as a pronouncement from the eternal, all-powerful God, “This is what the Lord says—he who created you” (vs. 1, NIV). God spells out, with practical descriptions, how He will be involved in our life struggles. “When you pass through the waters, I will be with you” (vs. 2, NIV). From The Message paraphrase: “When you’re in over your head, I’ll be there with you.” Discuss what this means to you. What plans does your congregation have to get the word out, “ ‘I, even I, am the Lord, and apart from me there is no savior’ ” (Isa. 43:11, NIV)?

It Is Finished: From Death to Life

Describe Jesus’ last experiences just before He died (John 19:28–30). What did Jesus mean when He said that “it is finished”? What was finished?

Though the enemy, Satan, in conjunction with some of the leaders, had orchestrated Christ’s death, at the crucial moment Jesus voluntarily surrendered His life to the Father: “He bowed his head and gave up his spirit” (John 19:30, NIV). The language suggests that He went to sleep, trusting in the goodness, benevolence, and love of the Father. He had said to the disciples, “‘I lay down my life—only to take it up again. No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord’” (John 10:17, 18, NIV). Now when the proper moment arrived, He did just that.

“It is finished” meant that the perfect atoning sacrifice had once and for all been offered and that heaven and earth had been reconnected through it. The plan of salvation, kept secret for ages, was now fully revealed to the universe in the obedient death of the Son of God on the cross. God had provided the sacrifice, and now its atoning power was available to every human being who will look to the Cross as the exclusive way of salvation. Consequently, the sacrificial system of the Old Testament ended. At the moment Jesus died, the veil of the temple was torn apart, from top to bottom (Matt. 27:51, Mark 15:38), indicating that the presence of God and His accessibility to us was now located in the sacrifice and person of His beloved Son.

“It is finished” was a triumphal shout. He came to defeat Satan, and He accomplished this in the weakness of human flesh and in the midst of a mortal confrontation (Heb. 2:14). The ultimate destruction of Satan and his angels was fixed at the Cross.

This victory was revealed and sealed through His resurrection, when the forces of evil were unable to retain the Son of God inside the tomb. That glorious Sunday morning the words of Jesus were fulfilled: “‘I have authority to lay it [my life] down and authority to take it up again. This command I received from my Father’” (John 10:18, NIV). Jesus is “‘the Living One; I was dead, and behold I am alive for ever and ever! And I hold the keys of death and Hades’” (Rev. 1:18, NIV).

What hope does the fact that Christ finished His work at the cross offer us? What does that tell us about resting in Him and His works for us? How should this reality be expressed in our lives and behavior?
Application Questions:
How would you describe atonement to a seven-year-old in such a way that he or she would understand and ask Jesus to be his or her Friend? How would your description be different for a work associate or neighbor?

Witnessing
Jesus left heaven and came to actually walk on earth in order to serve us—we who are so unlovely. Words such as broken, apathetic, or rebellious describe our condition in contrast with a holy Savior. Make a list of possible outreach activities your class could undertake. Discuss how far out of your normal comfort zone you might be willing to go in order to follow Jesus’ example. Your list of projects might include a short-term mission trip to a community member’s home to clean and do repairs. You might tutor children after school, feed the homeless, or adopt a community project such as cleaning local roads or providing clothing to a halfway house.

STEP 4—Apply

Consider This: We come back to where we began—our desperate need to take the first step. The possibility of rescue exists. All we have to do is accept the atonement made in our behalf. What keeps you from choosing the salvation Jesus has made possible and now offers? Invite class members to share their personal testimony and current spiritual experience. Ask them, “How are you and Jesus getting along?” If they share specific challenges, covenant as a class to be prayer and accountability partners with your struggling classmate. You may find that each one of you has need for that kind of spiritual renewal, support, and encouragement. At the same time, along with prayer, are there any other ways you can be of assistance to each other? That is, each has gifts and talents and resources that others don’t. How can we be more open to seeking to bear one another’s burdens? Why is that such an important part of what it means to be a follower of Christ?
Further Study: “Man has not been made a sin-bearer, and he will never know the horror of the curse of sin which the Saviour bore. No sorrow can bear any comparison with the sorrow of Him upon whom the wrath of God fell with overwhelming force. Human nature can endure but a limited amount of test and trial. The finite can only endure the finite measure, and human nature succumbs; but the nature of Christ had a greater capacity for suffering; for the human existed in the divine nature, and created a capacity for suffering to endure that which resulted from the sins of a lost world. The agony which Christ endured, broadens, deepens, and gives a more extended conception of the character of sin, and the character of the retribution which God will bring upon those who continue in sin. The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ to the repenting, believing sinner.”—Ellen G. White Comments, The SDA Bible Commentary, vol. 5, p. 1103.

Discussion Questions:

1. Read carefully the Ellen G. White quote above. In essence she is saying that nothing any one of us, as finite creatures, has ever suffered could match the suffering of the Son of God on the cross. What does that tell us about what sin cost God? How does this idea, of Christ’s suffering being worse than anything we could face, help us understand how suffering could exist in a world created by a loving God? What comfort can you draw, if any, from knowing that God has suffered worse from sin than any of us ever had or ever could?

2. Dwell on Wednesday’s lesson, the idea of the temporal sundering of the Godhead. What can you take from that which can help you understand the depth of the atonement? How was that experience in the Godhead “the penalty” for our sin? Discuss your answer in class on Sabbath.

3. What does it mean to give of yourself unselfishly for others? What examples from everyday life can you find of this principle in operation? How can we, both as individuals and as a church, better manifest such unselfish giving?

Summary: On the cross, Jesus experienced the fullness of the sinner’s eternal separation from God. God Himself was in Christ paying the penalty for sin, atoning for our sins.
