

The Divinity of the Holy Spirit

SABBATH AFTERNOON

Read for This Week's Study: Acts 5:1–4; 1 Cor. 2:10, 11; Isa. 63:10–14; Titus 3:4–6; Rom. 8:11; 1 Pet. 1:2.

Memory Text: “The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit, be with you all” (2 Corinthians 13:14, NASB).

All through the Bible, the deity of God the Father is simply assumed. We find this truth expressed both in the Old Testament and in the New Testament. It is one of the most crucial and foundational of the many revealed truths in the Word of God.

The deity of Jesus also is affirmed in many places in Scripture, especially, of course, in the New Testament, both in the Gospels and the Epistles.

However, the deity of the Holy Spirit is taught in more subtle terms. It can be inferred from various indirect biblical statements. Here we need to compare scripture with scripture in order to study carefully what God has revealed in His Word about the Holy Spirit. In doing so, we should not affirm less than what Scripture states, and we also should not “exceed what is written” (1 Cor. 4:6, NASB). This topic demands a teachable attitude of humility; we should not make our human reasoning about God the standard of how the Holy Spirit should be understood. Instead, we should accept and testify to what Scripture affirms, no matter how hard some of the concepts might be for us to grasp fully.

* Study this week's lesson to prepare for Sabbath, January 21.

The Holy Spirit and God

The Bible does not present a systematic description of the divinity of the Holy Spirit. Instead, we find interesting traces that indicate that the biblical writers considered the Holy Spirit to be equal with God. There are several biblical passages where the same activity is attributed to God and then also to the Holy Spirit.

Read Acts 5:1–4. What can we conclude about God and the Holy Spirit from Peter’s words to Ananias?

If the Holy Spirit were not God, then Peter would have been speaking here in a very careless and fatally misleading manner. The interesting aspect about the nature of the Holy Spirit, however, is the fact that the apostle Peter puts God and the Holy Spirit on the same level. In Acts 5:3, he asks Ananias why he has lied to the Holy Spirit, and he continues at the end of Acts 5:4: “ ‘You have not lied to men but to God’ ” (NASB). Peter clearly equates the Holy Spirit with God. His point is that Ananias was lying not just to the apostles but to God Himself. Lying to the Holy Spirit is lying to God. The Holy Spirit is God. The point is made here very clearly.

Why such a harsh punishment for these two people’s actions?

We must remember that the believers of the early church in Acts were “one in heart and mind” (Acts 4:32, NIV). This unity was a product of the Holy Spirit, and this is the reason they voluntarily and freely shared what they possessed. To lie with regard to the sharing was to deny the unity of the community and to belie the Spirit that undergirded that unity and made it possible.

This is why the lie of Ananias and his wife falsified the divine work and presence of the Holy Spirit in the early church community. Such dishonesty toward God is destructive and hinders the Spirit of God from working effectively in the lives of believers. God wants us to serve Him undividedly. Because the new faith community was at a crucial juncture, God used drastic consequences to make sure that the new church would work in unison and truthfulness with one another and be willing to be led by His Spirit.

Think how easily Ananias and Sapphira may have justified their sin. After all, haven’t we sold our own property and given some of it to the church? What’s the big deal if we keep a little? What should this story tell us about how careful we need to be regarding how we justify our actions?

The Holy Spirit's Divine Attributes

In several biblical passages, the Holy Spirit is described as having divine attributes.

What attributes and activities of the Holy Spirit are listed in the following Bible passages that, otherwise, can be attributed only to God?

1 Cor. 2:10, 11; compare with Isa. 40:13, 14 _____

Ps. 139:7 _____

Heb. 9:14; compare with 1 Tim. 6:16 _____

Luke 1:35; Rom. 15:19; compare with Ps. 104:30 _____

In his examination of the wisdom of God, Paul argues that it is the Holy Spirit who makes this wisdom known to us. “Like knows like” is the reasoning Paul employs here in his argument. Only One who is equal to God can know the deep things of God (1 Cor. 2:10, 11). There is no knowing God as does the Spirit, for He knows God from the inside. He knows in a way that an outsider does not. The Holy Spirit is indeed omniscient.

The presence of the Spirit is the presence of God. If I cannot flee to a place where the Spirit of God is not, He is omnipresent (compare with Ps. 139:7).

The Holy Spirit is said to be eternal (Heb. 9:14). According to the Bible, how many eternal beings are there? Only God is eternal (1 Tim. 6:16). If the Spirit is called eternal, then He must be God.

The Holy Spirit also is all-powerful or almighty. In Luke 1:35 the phrases “the Holy Spirit” and “the power of the most High” (NASB) are synonymous constructions. Here they refer to a miracle of the first magnitude, the virgin conception. In Romans 15:19, the apostle Paul acknowledges that his ministry was achieved by “mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God” (NKJV). Indeed, the Holy Spirit can do divine miracles.

Jesus also says that blasphemy against the Spirit is unforgivable (Matt. 12:31, 32; Mark 3:28, 29). This is incomprehensible unless the Spirit is divine.

But perhaps the most amazing work of the Holy Spirit is His ability to change human hearts and minds. It is the Holy Spirit who accomplishes a new spiritual birth (John 3:5–8). He has the power to accomplish something that only God can do.

Biblical Hints

There are various references to the Holy Spirit in the Bible that are interchangeable with references to God.

Read Isaiah 63:10–14 and compare it with Numbers 14:11 and Deuteronomy 32:12. To whom was the writer referring in these passages, and what does this tell us about the divinity of the Holy Spirit?

In Isaiah 63:10, the people rebelled and grieved the Holy Spirit. However, the parallel account, as found in Numbers 14:11, states that “the LORD said to Moses, ‘How long will this people spurn me?’” (NASB). And in Deuteronomy 32:12, we are told that “‘the LORD alone guided him, and there was no foreign god with him’” (NASB). Obviously the biblical writers saw God and the Holy Spirit on par with each other.

In 2 Samuel 23:2, we read that “‘the Spirit of the LORD spoke by me’” (NASB), whereas in the parallel statement in 2 Samuel 23:3, it says: “‘The God of Israel said . . . to me’” (NASB). Again, the conclusion from this biblical parallel is that the Holy Spirit is considered to be equal to God.

Compare 1 Corinthians 3:16, 17 with 1 Corinthians 6:19, 20, and compare 1 Corinthians 12:11 with 1 Corinthians 12:28. How are the references to the Holy Spirit and to God used interchangeably in these passages? What is attributed to God and to the Holy Spirit alike?

In 1 Corinthians 3:16, 17, Paul uses similar language as in 1 Corinthians 6:19, 20. For the apostle Paul, to be indwelt by the Holy Spirit is to be inhabited by God. By equating the expression “God’s temple” (NIV) with a temple “of the Holy Spirit” (NIV), Paul points out that the Holy Spirit is God.

In 1 Corinthians 12:11, Paul writes that it is the Holy Spirit who distributes the spiritual gifts to each believer. A few verses later in 1 Corinthians 12:28, we are told that it is God who is doing it. The basic message is clear: the Holy Spirit does the same action as God is doing, powerful evidence that the Holy Spirit is equal to God.

Read again Numbers 14:11. In what ways might this be applied to us today? Think about the miraculous ways God has worked in our church. Think about all the reasons He has given us to believe. How can we make sure we aren’t doing today what God’s people did thousands of years ago?

Divine Work of the Holy Spirit

The Holy Spirit performs certain works, which the Bible ascribes only to God. He is active in the divine work of the Creation, and He is just as active in God's re-creation of sinners.

Read Titus 3:4–6. How does Paul describe the involvement of the Holy Spirit in the process of re-creation?

The Holy Spirit is mentioned side by side with “God our Savior” (Titus 3:4, NASB) in the context of the washing of regeneration (baptism) and our spiritual renewal (Titus 3:5). He is the agent of our new birth. He renews our hearts. He awakens our desire to follow Christ. He is the Spirit of life (Rom. 8:2). He is the One who sanctifies sinners and transforms our characters. He helps us to be obedient to Jesus Christ, who saved us. Only a Divine Being is capable of such wonderful things.

Compare Isaiah 6:8–10 with Acts 28:25–27. To whom do the biblical writers attribute the divine speaking?

There are several biblical passages in which, on the one hand, God is said to be speaking and in which other biblical writers state that the Holy Spirit is said to be speaking. It is the Holy Spirit who supernaturally imparted the Holy Scriptures to us (2 Pet. 1:21), something that elsewhere is described as God's inspiration (2 Tim. 3:16). Giving the Scriptures is another divine work of the Spirit.

What does Romans 8:11 teach us about the divinity of the Holy Spirit?

The Bible states that the Holy Spirit raised Jesus from the dead and will also raise us. Only God has the power to raise people from the dead. Hence, the Holy Spirit is God.

What are changes you can make that would cause you to be more open to the leading of the Holy Spirit? That is, what practices might be keeping you from clearly discerning His leading in your life?

The Importance of His Divinity

What would be lost if the Holy Spirit were not God? If the Holy Spirit is not fully God, the implications for salvation and worship are serious. The Bible tells us that the Holy Spirit is responsible for regenerating believers. He dwells in us and fills us. He renews our thinking and changes our characters. He has the power to resurrect. He makes Christ's followers as God is: holy. If the Holy Spirit is not God, how can we be certain that He can do any of these things and do them in such a way that they are acceptable to God?

Read 1 Peter 1:2; 2 Corinthians 13:14; and Matthew 28:18, 19. What does the fact that the Holy Spirit is mentioned side by side with God the Father, and Jesus Christ, the Son, in baptism and benedictions tell us about the place of the Holy Spirit in the adoration and worship of God?

The divinity of the Holy Spirit helps us to relate to Him in appropriate ways that acknowledge Him for who He truly is. His divinity is the presupposition for a God-centered spirituality. The New Testament church without hesitation mentions the Holy Spirit side by side with the other two members of the Godhead. The Holy Spirit occupies the same rank and position in the act of baptism as do the Father and the Son. Baptism has a deep spiritual significance and is an ordinance of profound worship. What is true in the act of baptism is equally true of the apostolic benediction. It is an invocation of adoration where the Holy Spirit is praised just as are the Father and the Son. All three persons of the Godhead are mentioned side by side and are affirmed equally.

The Holy Spirit is affirmed as a proper object of worship in the New Testament, not just in baptism and in the apostolic benediction but also in the constant requirement that we depend on Him for all spiritual good and should obey Him as our divine teacher and sanctifier. Does it matter that the Holy Spirit is God? Yes, very much so. If we know who He truly is, and recognize and acknowledge His deity, we will honor His work and rely on Him for our own personal growth and sanctification.

Think about what it means that the Holy Spirit, God Himself, is working in your life. What great promises are found here for us in knowing that it is God who is working in us to change us into what we can be in Him? Why is this an uplifting and affirming truth?

Further Thought: Read Ellen G. White, “Misrepresentations of the Godhead,” pp. 613–617, in Evangelism.

As we have seen this week, the biblical evidence for the divinity of the Holy Spirit is very convincing. The Holy Spirit is God. But remember: in thinking about the Holy Spirit, we are dealing with a divine mystery. We reiterate the point: just as we cannot fully explain God and His nature, we have to resist the temptation to make our human comprehension the norm for how God should be. Truth goes far beyond human comprehension, especially when that truth deals with the nature of God Himself.

At the same time, faith in the divinity of the Holy Spirit means more than accepting the bare teaching of the Trinity. It includes reliance on and confidence in the saving work of God as it is commissioned by the Father and accomplished through the Son in the power of the Spirit. “It is not essential for us to be able to define just what the Holy Spirit is. . . . The nature of the Holy Spirit is a mystery. Men cannot explain it, because the Lord has not revealed it to them. Men having fanciful views may bring together passages of Scripture and put a human construction on them, but the acceptance of these views will not strengthen the church. Regarding such mysteries, which are too deep for human understanding, silence is golden.”—Ellen G. White, The Acts of the Apostles, pp. 51, 52.

Discussion Questions:

① Austrian philosopher Ludwig Wittgenstein once wrote: “What we cannot speak about we must pass over in silence.” Although his context was quite different from that which Ellen G. White wrote above, the principle is the same. That is, why is it better to keep silent about aspects of God and of spiritual truth in general that have not been revealed by Inspiration?

② Sometimes it is helpful to reflect upon a theological position by asking the question: What would be lost if the proposal were untrue? For instance, What would be lost if Christ were not divine? With regard to the Holy Spirit, reflect on the following question: What would be lost if the Holy Spirit were not fully God?

③ What does the following quote say to us on a practical level? “The Holy Spirit, who is to fill us, is not some vague influence or mystic force. He is a divine Person, to be received with deep humility, veneration, and obedience. Therefore it is not a question of our having more of Him, but of His having more of us—yes, all there is of us.”—LeRoy Edwin Froom, The Coming of the Comforter, p. 159.

Finding God's Plan: Part 1

"Roza, take a look at this," Grandmother said as she gave Roza a colorful pamphlet. "It's an invitation to a series of lectures about the Bible. You should go. You might learn something interesting."

Grandmother knew that Roza, who was preparing to become a teacher, was interested in religious things. She was active in her parents' church in Poland and even volunteered as a youth leader, though she wasn't much older than the youth she led. Her parents were proud of her involvement with the church and of her other accomplishments.

Roza took the pamphlet from her grandmother and looked closely at the colorful pictures on the front. She read the invitation and decided to attend the lectures. She was curious about what she might learn.

Roza found a seat and settled down for the lecture. She met a young man at the lectures who was about her age. As they became acquainted, he invited her to attend a summer Bible camp that the church sponsored. Roza decided to go; she was curious about this church that seemed to know so much about the Bible.

When she arrived at the Seventh-day Adventist youth camp, Roza was a bit nervous about being among so many strangers. But the young man who had invited her introduced her to several young people from her hometown. She liked making new friends and soon found herself enjoying the fellowship at the Bible camp as much as she did the Bible studies.

When Roza returned home, she started attending the Adventist church every Sabbath. She knew that her parents wouldn't be happy that she was attending a new church, so she didn't tell them where she was going on Sabbath mornings.

But soon her excitement about what she was learning spilled over, and she told her mother everything she had learned at Bible camp and church. She told her mother that smoking was not healthy and urged her to quit. Roza also explained what she had learned about having a personal relationship with Jesus. "We don't have to confess our sins to a priest," she told her mother. "Just tell God."

Roza's revelation worried her mother. "Why do you want to get involved in some strange church?" she asked. "We have a perfectly good church."

"But these people really love Jesus," Roza explained. "They follow the Bible. I want to learn what God teaches."

"If you insist on becoming an Adventist," her mother said with a sigh, "don't expect any financial support from me."

To be continued in next week's Inside Story.

Learning Cycle

►STEP 1—Motivate

Spotlight on Scripture: 1 Corinthians 6:19, 20

Key Concept for Spiritual Growth: Just as the earthly tabernacle was a dwelling place for the Shekinah glory of God, our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit, designed to reveal God’s glory through godly lives. The amazing truth of Scripture is that the God of the universe longs to dwell in our hearts through the Person of the Holy Spirit.

Just for Teachers: This week’s lesson is crucial to our understanding of the ministry of the Holy Spirit in the life of each Christian. Understanding that the Holy Spirit is the Third Person of the Godhead with the attributes of the Father and Son makes a major difference in how we relate to the role of the Holy Spirit in our lives. The Holy Spirit is not some force to be used. He is not some power to be sought after. He is a divine Member of the Godhead to whom we open our hearts and surrender our lives. We are not to use the Holy Spirit. He is to use us to testify of the glory of the crucified, risen, and soon-coming Christ.

The attributes of God are the attributes of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is all-knowing, all-powerful, omnipresent, and eternal (1 Cor. 2:10, 11; Pss. 104:30; 139:7; Heb. 9:14). To be filled with the Spirit is to be filled with the presence of God. The indwelling of the Spirit is the indwelling of the Father’s presence in the temple of our hearts. It is God dwelling within us through His Holy Spirit.

Opening Discussion: Throughout the Bible, the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are linked in an indissoluble union (Matt. 28:18, 19; 1 Pet. 1:2; 2 Cor. 13:14). They cooperated in the work of Creation and Redemption. In what ways is Their work similar? How is Their work different? Which of these Three is prominent in the Old Testament era? Who among Them is the most prominently featured in the four Gospels? Why? Which One is in the forefront in the book of Acts?

Some have called the book of Acts “The Acts of the Holy Spirit.” Throughout the book of Acts and the epistles of Paul, the Holy Spirit is present as the Third Person of the Godhead, convicting the soul of sin, instructing in righteousness, testifying of Jesus, and changing lives. Writing to Titus, the apostle Paul declares that we are saved “not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us, through the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit” (Titus 3:5, NKJV). It is through the Holy Spirit that our hearts are renewed, our lives changed, and our souls refreshed.

Questions for Discussion:

❶ When you think of the Holy Spirit, what thoughts immediately come to mind? Share with the class a few phrases that enter your mind when you think of the Holy Spirit.

❷ How does an understanding of who the Holy Spirit is make a difference in your life? In what practical ways does this knowledge make a difference to us?

►STEP 2—Explore

Just for Teachers: Throughout the New Testament, the Holy Spirit is described as the divine regenerating, sanctifying, life-changing, and life-giving Agent (Titus 3:5, 1 Pet. 1:2, 2 Cor. 3:6). In Romans 8, the apostle Paul talks about living in the flesh and living in the Spirit. Living in the flesh is the vain attempt to live the Christian life in our own strength rather than in the power of the Holy Spirit. Living in the Spirit is living a life of surrender to the Spirit’s convictions and claims. It is dying daily to the desires of the carnal heart and being renewed by the sanctifying grace of the Spirit.

Crucifixion is an exceedingly painful death. Christ’s crucifixion certainly was. Christ died for our sins; but through the Holy Spirit, we die to sin. Sin no longer is a way of life for the converted heart. Our soul’s longing is to please Jesus, and this desire is accomplished through the sanctifying power of the Holy Spirit.

Bible Commentary

I. Understanding the Divinity of the Holy Spirit (Review 1 Peter 1:2 and Romans 15:19 with the class.)

What are the characteristics of God? What makes God, God? First, He is eternal. He never had a beginning and will never have an ending. He is the great “‘I AM’ ” (Exod. 3:14, NKJV). He is the One “who is and who was and who is to come” (Rev. 1:4). The fact that God has existed from eternity sets Him apart from all created beings in the universe. He is also omniscient or all-knowing (Dan. 2:20–22). There is nothing that an all-wise God does not know. His knowledge is neither limited nor partial. He is both omnipresent and omnipotent, as well. His Presence can be felt everywhere (Psalms 139). His power is limitless. He is the eternal, all-knowing, all-powerful, and omnipresent God. The idea of the future being “open,” in that there are some things God cannot know before they happen, is alien to the Bible.

Here is an amazing truth. The same qualities that are attributed to God in Scripture are also attributed to the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is also eternal (Heb. 9:14). He is all-knowing, all-powerful, and omnipresent (1 Cor. 2:10, 11; Rom. 15:19; Ps. 139:7). The Father and Son are present with us, providing all the resources of heaven through the ministry of the Holy Spirit.

As children of God, we have been promised the wisdom and the power of the Spirit. Through the Spirit, we have the assurance of eternal life and hope beyond the grave (Rom. 8:12–17). If the Holy Spirit were not divine, how could He offer us divine wisdom, sanctifying grace, life-changing power, and eternal hope? If the Holy Spirit were a mere force, He certainly could not offer us the assurance of eternal life. The eternal nature of the Godhead is absolutely critical in our understanding of the significance of the Holy Spirit for Christian living.

Explore with your class the practical implications that the Holy Spirit is eternal, all-knowing, all-powerful, and omnipresent. What do His attributes mean in day-to-day Christian living?

Consider This: Why are these attributes of the Holy Spirit so important in facing the temptations of the evil one? Why do some theologians declare that belief in the Holy Spirit is one of the most misunderstood truths in the Bible and that if we had a better understanding of who He is and how to experience His life-changing power, the grip of sin on our lives would be broken?

►STEP 3—Apply

Just for Teachers: We often struggle with the same selfish attitudes, the same harmful habits, and the same sinful tendencies for years. Help your class to understand the renewing, sanctifying, life-changing power of the Holy Spirit as the Third Person of the Godhead.

Application Questions:

❶ How can we experience the life-changing power of the Holy Spirit that the Scriptures describe?

② What are the things in our lives that distract us and keep us from enjoying the fullness of the Holy Spirit's power?

③ What can we do about these distractions? What is the key to victory over these lifelong habits, attitudes, and behaviors that are not in harmony with God's will?

►STEP 4—Create

Just for Teachers: This week's lesson is especially designed to help each class member understand the divine power of the Holy Spirit as the Third Person of the Godhead. Help your class to understand with clarity this vital truth for Christian living.

Activities:

- ① If supplies are available, provide a pencil and an index card to each class member. Invite the class members to write in one sentence the most significant thing they learned in class this week.
- ② As an encouragement to the class, ask members to read the sentence they have written. Where supplies are unavailable, invite students to share their thoughts aloud with the class.
